Routine Physical & Annual Wellness Examinations

You have scheduled your visit today as an annual routine preventative medicine physical. This is preventative medical care. This is also called an annual wellness examination.

Most insurance companies follow American Medical Association guideline criteria for preventative routine physicals. The service is performed for the purpose of preventative medicine. The patient is without medical complaints or symptoms.

Many PPO and Indemnity Insurance contracts do not have this as a benefit for their members. Some policies have a limited dollar benefit for preventative routine physicals for the primary card holder only and not for dependents.

If you feel today's visit is to discuss problems and concerns or you are having symptoms that need to be addressed by your provider, please notify the receptionist immediately. We will change your chart to accurately reflect the reason for today's visit.

Any medical complaints or symptoms discussed during an annual routine preventative physical will deem the examination a problem visit and may require a copay or office visit charge. Your provider will document medical issues addressed or managed as part of your care today.

Today's visit is for my annual preventative medicine physical exam as indicated by my appointment. I am without medical complaints or symptoms. I understand my visit will be filed to my insurance company as preventative care medicine. If my insurance denies my routine preventative care exam, classification of my visit cannot be changed and I will be responsible for charges incurred for today's visit.
